IMMEDIATE TRIAL DATES

BC SUPREME COURT
JULY 13 – 21
10AM – 4PM

The Drug User Liberation Front launched the Compassion Club and Fulfillment Centre to demonstrate that people who use drugs deserve access to a regulated, tested supply rather than an increasingly toxic illicit market. It was about preventing overdose deaths, protecting human dignity, and proving that another approach is possible.

Participants reported relying less on the illicit market, experiencing fewer overdoses, and seeing improvements in their physical and mental well-being. Every substance was tested, accurately labeled, and distributed within a carefully designed public health framework. The project generated valuable evidence showing that compassion, regulation, and community can save lives where prohibition continues to fail.

The toxic drug crisis has only deepened, yet the need for evidence-based solutions remains as urgent as ever. From July 13 to July 21, we will be back in court defending not only ourselves, but the principle that governments cannot ignore an ongoing public health emergency while criminalizing those working to save lives.
